TRAGMENTS OF TWO MORE HUMAN RODIES TAKEN OUT.

some Papers of Abner McKinley's and a Piece of Tapestry of F. S. Flower's with a Lot of Bits of Silverware—Police Find in a Pawnshop a Stolen Jewelled Belt. Ten unidentified hodies or principal remains bodies have now been taken from the Windsor Hotel ruins, making, with the ten Mentified dead, a total of twenty.

A small number of charred human bones were found yesterday morning on the Fortyperenth street side of the ruins. These were part of a skull, several vertebre and some leg bones. There is some reason to believe that these fragments are all that is left of the body of Miss M. C. McNulty, who lived at the hotel. Herrooms were on Forty-seventh street in the Berrooms which Madison avenue. At the time of the fire Mrs. Anglim, a hairdresser, was in attendance upon her. Since the fire two of Miss McNulty's nephews, named Williams and Parrish, have been watching the workmen on that side of the building.

At 1:25 o'clock this morning the workmen found the charred legs of a body near the ele-

The rain vesterday added to the difficulty of taking out in a satisfactory way any bodies that might be found. Several of the bodies so far found are little more than streaks of charcoal in beds of ashes and brick dust. The work resterday was mainly carried on about the elerator shaft, near which a body, supposed to be that of fluion, the elevator boy, was found on Wednesday night. The tangled ironwork of the elevator made a great deal of trouble for the workmen. Some of it, so the inspectors the working the cannot be taken up without the aid of a steam derrick. Last night a bundle of valuable tapestries and rugs was found. Some were badly burned and others were comparatively uninqued. It was believed that they were the property of f. S. Flower, the nephew of ex-Gov Flower, and he was replied Mr. Flower's representative inspected the property and identified one piece of tapes. This he took away, with him, saying that it was worth $4.60. It was not much damaged. Abner Mchiniev and his law partner, Col. W. C. SENSATION CAUSED BY THE BOARDER. Danced the Cancan in the Parlor and Led a Race in His Nightshirt.

Joseph H. Doyle, a salesman, who lives in a boarding house at 150 West Twenty-second street, after being drunk for two weeks, went home early igst might. He undressed and refired for the night, but after an hour determined to cause a sensation. Attired only in a hightshirt, he went downstairs to the parlor, where the women boarders were swapping nightshirt, he went downstairs to the parior, where the women boarders were awapping gossip.

There was a series of shrieks from each woman and a mad rush for the door when Doyle stated to dance the cancan, uttering wild waryhoops. Some of the men boarders, isaring that he would attempt to go into the street, itself the door with ropes. Doyle burst the ropes and ran out of the house, the male boarders in pursuit. He ran aimost to Seventh avenue before he was caught. Then he was overpowered, wranted up in an overcoat and led tack to the house.

Bryant is under ar-test American Landscapes and Marines at the Lotos Club.

The twenty-four canvases that Mr. William T. Evans has brought together for the March exhibition at the Lotos Club form as attractive s group as any that has been seen here this eason. They are all either landscapes or marines, and the seventeen painters represented are all Americans. Men of very different temperament and talent are among them, but in heir aims they are not so widely dissimilar as to disturb the harmony of the exhibition.

So many of the canvases here shown have ecently been seen elsewhere that it is unnecessary to dwell upon them at length. In the first place, there are several important examples from the Clarke collection. "The West (6), by Mr. Winslow Homer, comes from Mr. Samuel Untermyer. This is the picture with the bare foreground, almost empty in its bareness, the figure of a woman, her cape blown out by the violence of the wind, and the sea beyond lashed into a white foam. Every one who saw this canvas at the American Art Galleries will recall it. It is the perfection of simplicity; it has nothing of the dramatic element that gave a certain superior attractiveness to such things as "The Life Line" and "To the Rescue," but in sheer force and perfection of representation it would be hard to point to any one of Mr. Homer's pictures that surpasses it. Mr. George A. Hearn sends George Inness's "Wood Gatherers" (7), one of most beautiful and postic Innesses of the Clarke collection, and Mr. E. F. Milliken sends another of them, "Nine o'Clock" (8), the charming village scene at moonlight. "Adirondack Scenery" (11), by Homer Martin-which undoubtedly ranks among his very best landscapes-is here. too. There are two other paintings by Martin besides, "An Old Church in Normandy" (12) which belongs to Mr. Evans, and "Newport Neck" (13), which is owned by the Lotos Club. Both are good examples. "Newport Neck" especially, with its low gray rocks, the strip of blue sea in the background and the curious yellow sky, but neither of them is nearly so interesting as the canvas from the Clarke collection.

-By Mr. J. Alden Weir there is a fine canvas.

A New England Village" (20), which, it will be remembered, was shown at the exhibition held by Ten American Painters at Durand-Ruel's last spring. The subject is curiously unattractive in itself—a prosaic village with a tall factory chimney, half hidden by a tree that stands beside a telegraph pole in the foreground. An artist of less ability than Mr. Weir might be puzzled how to treat such a subject, but while he has been perfectly uncompromising in dealing with it, he has se cured a singularly decorative and interesting result. One of the best of Mr. Ranger's landscapes, "Becky Cole's Hill" (16), is contributed by Mr. A. C. Humphreys. It was shown among other recent canvases by the same artist at one of the dealers' galleries the other day, and was commented upon at the time in this column. Oaks" (17), that has the makings of something R. A. Blakelock there is a misty moonligh with two trees silhonetted against the sky-an interesting picture lent by Mr. Evans, who also sends an attractive moonlight, "The Return of the Fold " (4), by Mr. L. P. Dessar; another by Mr. Ryder (18), a slight thing representing a boat drifting before the wind on a turbulent sea, and canvases by W. Gedney Bunce, C. Melville Dewey, F. W. Kost, D. W. Tryon, and A. H. Wyant.

painter, perhaps the one lent by Mr. Hearn, The North Woods" (21), is the best. "In the Adirondacks" (22) is in theme somewhat similar, but the effect is more studied, the sentiment more obvious, than in the other. Bogert sends a landscape in Holland (2), which is very painty, and on no account to be ranked among his most successful productions. Mr. Minor contributes a colorful composition entitled "Nightfall" (14), which has in it all the elements of a piece of stage scenery. Much more interesting is the other canvas that he sends, "A Tragedy of the Sea " (9), by George Inness It represents a ship burning flercely while the crew float on the heavy seas, clinging to spars and wreckage. It is dramatic and effective, but does not show the artist by any means at his best. The only other artist represented is Mr. J. F. Murphy, by whom there is a landscape from Mr. Hearn's collection The exhibition will be opened to-morrow evening, and ladies who have received invitations will be admitted on Monday and Tuesday from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The Society of American Artists will open its reception to-morrow evening. The public will be admitted on Monday, and the exhibition will be closed on April 29.

PISTOL FOUND IN A CHURCH.

A Wedding There the Night Before-Was There a Jealous Lover in the Case?

Among the unclaimed articles in the Police Preperty Clerk's office in Brooklyn are a brand new six-chamber revolver of .44 calibr and two boxes of cartridges to correspond, which were recently found in a pew in the Catholic Church of Our Lady of Mercy in Debevoise place. The find was made by Sex-Debevoise place. The makes made by Sexton White while engaged one morning in cleaning up the church, and he handed the articles to the Rev. Father Foley, the pastor, who in turn forwarded them to Folice Captain Dunn of the Adams street station. The revolver is furnished with interchangeable barrels, one for short and the other for long range, and it had the short range barrel attached. All the chambers were loaded, and the weapon, which had never been used, had been carefully olled. It was in a cardboard box when found in the pew. For more than a week Capt. Dunn has had his precinct detectives at work trying to find the owner of the p'stol, but they have met with no success, and how it came to be left in the church is a mystery. There was a marriage in the church on the evening before the discovery was made, and this fact has led to a conjecture that a disappointed lover may have gone to the church bent on murder, but suddenly abandoned his purpose and hurried off, leaving the weapon behind him. ton White while engaged one morning in Daniel Kelly sent for him yesterday and asked for an explanation.

"Why, said the man, "was it really so that inquests were held?"

"Certainly," said Mr. Kelly. "Do you think we take the trouble to subperna people just for the fun of it?"

"Well, you see it was this way, explained the man. "I've been fooled many times, and when I got the paper calling upon me to serve on the cases of Lark and Joille I said to myself. Here's some funny fellow trying to fool me. It may be a lark, but they can't joily me for a cent. That's the reason I didn't come around. It seems too bad, though, that men with such names should commit suicide.

The explanation was satisfactory to Deputy Coroner Kelly and the juror was excused.

FOR A NEW SHIP ROUTE TO MANILA Plan to Open a Coaling Station on One of the Aleutian Islands.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 23.-The United States Government has made tests of coal discovered in the Alaskan Peninsula by the Chignik Bay Coal Company and it is probable that an examination will be made by the cutters sent north to protect sealing.
The plan proposed is to establish a coaling station on one of the outer Aleutian Islands for the use of vessels bound from the United States to Manila. The route would then be from Seattle to Manila instead of via Honolulu.

Rings People's Door Bells and Tells Them

Their Houses Are Afire. RIVERHEAD, L. I., March 23,-A singular in dividual appeared in this village this morning Having chalked some mysterious characters on the front gate of D. Sandman's premises in Main street, he rang the front door bell. When Miss Nellie Sandman responded he told her the house was on fire. Miss Sandman ran the house was on fire. Miss Sandman ran through the house screaming "Fire!" and the whole household rushed out of doors. It was soon ascertained that there was no fire and the indignant family reproached the stranger, who was still on the front porch bowing and scraping. He then congratulated the family on the fact that their home was not on fire and wound up his remarks by asking for a drink of water. He was ousled from the premises, but repeated the same trick at other piaces until word was sent to the Sheriff's office and he was arrested. He was sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. He said his name was McCormick.

Kennedy smiled and tilted back in his chair. John A. Davis, a negro beliboy, testified that he was called to room 84 that night and saw a man and woman there. The man was sitting on the lounge reading a newspaper, which held partly before his face. The woman was standing near a table. Davis identified the photograph of Dolly Reynolds. The man ordered a rint of wine.

"Please stand up," said Justice Williams, addressing Kennedy.

"That's the man who ordered the wine." said the wirness. "When I brought the wine up to him, I asked whether I should draw the cork. He said No, leave the corkscrew here." I said it wasn't necessary."

FIFTEEN CHINAMEN ARRESTED.

Identified and Accused by Three Young Girls in Paterson Yesterday. PATERSON, N. J., March 23.- On information and contession from four girls, the oldest of whom is not 16 years of age, the police made the rounds of the Chinese laundries in this city to-day and arrested fifteen Chinamen, all of whom were identified by the girls as men whom they had visited from time to time and from whom they had received money. The prisoners will be arraigned to-morrow morning to plead. Other Chinamen in this city and Passale are said to be implicated, and there is general alarm among the laundrymen, several of whom are preparing to leave town. The confession of the girls is to the effect that they voluntarily made the rounds of the laundries. All the girls are of respectable paren tage. The revelations came about through the arrest of Clara Nauta, 14 years old, and Minnie Beckert, 15 years old, who live in East Sixth street, in a neighborhood made up of fami-lies who work in the silk mills. They were committed to the county jall as vagrants, on the testimony of their parents that they were frequently out all night and were often in the company of dissolute youths. For some time the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty frequently out all night and were often in the company of dissolute youths. For some time the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has been interested in the matter of the increasing number of very young girls to be seen on the streets at night, and two of the agents, learning that the two girls had been in the habit of being on the streets, queationed them. They learned more than they suspected, for the Nauta girl broke down and told of the surprising degradation of her life during the past few weeks.

She and the Beckert girl, she said, had given up work in the mills two months before, and had contrived to make their families believe they were still working, by bringing home the usual admount of money. This money they got from the Chinamen, and after paying in the usual amount, at home had enough left over to go to the theatres and buy new hats and dresses, besides candy and occasional drinks. They were dissolute before they knew the Chinamen, and took to going around to the laundries because of the money with which the laundrymen were free. The Nauta girl said that she frequently had two or, three dollars after making her collections. Two other girls went with her and the Beckert girl, she said—Hsnnah Van Ness, 15 years old, and Vinie Veneman, 14 years old.

All four of the girls were taken before Recorder Senior, and, after learing their etories, which agreed in the main, the Recorder issued warrants for fifteen Chinese laundrymen. Three of the girls were taken before Recorder Senior, and, after learing their etories, which agreed in the main, the Recorder issued warrants for fifteen Chinese laundrymen. There is a story of a man who was so busy looking at the stars that, as he walked, he stumbled into a well. That's the story of a typical man, too busy looking at things away off, to notice more important things near by.

One-sixth of all deaths are from consumption. But the man goes along with his eyes bulging to watch cholera and yellow fever. He disdains to cure the yellow fever. He disdains to cure the cold or check the little cough, and consumption trips him up.

HARVARD'S STRONG

Acknowledges Debt of Gratitude to Paine's Celery Compound.

[Photographed by Glines.]

Strong muscles and strong nerves go together.

Carl G. Herbert is the best developed man a: Harvard to-day, according to Dr. Sargeant, the University's professor of physical culture and director of the gymnasium.

Mr. Herbert believes Paine's celery compound to be the most wonderful preparation in the world for strengthening the body and enabling it to withstand great mental and physical exertion. He has consented to the publication of the following letter:

wells. Richardson & Co.:—I feel constrained, owing to the benefits i have derived from your incomparable remedy. Paine's celery compound, to write and tell you in what manner I have been benefited by if. As you are doubtless awars, an athlete's success is due very much to his condition or form, and that perfect condition or form depends much on the condition of his stomach. I feel, and know by experience, that Paine's celery compound is the ideal remedy for that purpose, as it not only strengthens the nervous system, which is so essential to good health, but we find that it regulates the entire system, and renders it in a condition to withstand either great mental strain or physical exertion. I stand at present at the head of the list of the Sargeant test of Harvard College, and am about to compete again this year. As a preliminary to the actual training I have taken two bottles of Paine's celery compound and know that with its aid I shall beat my own record this year, as I am now able, with no other training, to life many pounds more than before I commenced taking the compound. Possibly you may be interested in the forthcoming test and I will take pleasure in informing you of the outcome. In closing I will again say that I owe you my sincere thanks for the inestimable good that Paine's celery compound has done for me, and rest assured I will lesse no opportunity of recommending it to my friends and brother athletes. Very truly.

To the reader: You would be strong and well.

To the reader: You would be strong and well.

Paine's celery compound will enable you to be both. It will strengthen the nerves, purify the blood, revive the lost energy—in a word, it will do more to counteract the oncoming of ill-health, sickness, disease, than any other medicine in the world. There can be no possible reason for not testing the results in your own case.

The Man He Shot and the One He Meant to Shoot Both Plead for Him.

Grant O Brien, a well-known labor agitator and Tammany man, who has been in the county jail in Jersey City for nearly three nonths under indictment for shooting Edward Ranney, was released yesterday. O'Brien has been in serious trouble for about a year and a half. He first caused the arrest of Edward L. Quackenbush, a coal dealer, who lives in Bergen avenue, Jersey City, who, he alleged, had alienated his wife saffections. O'Brien did not prosecute the charge because he did not want to bring his wife into disgrace. About two months afterward he went to Quackenbush's office while drunk, and, falling to find Quackenbush. fired two shots at Ranney and another clerk, just to show what he would do to Quackenbush if he were there. He was tried for that, convicted and, notwithstanding a strong pull from Tammany politicians in this city, was sentenced to six months in the penitentiary. While out on hail pending an appeal taken to the Supreme Court by his counsel, Joseph M. Noonan, O'Brien lay in wait for Quackenbush one night at his house and shot Ranney in mistake for him. At his trial for that the jury disagreed. A day or two ago Quackenbush visited O'Brien in the county jail, and they had a long interview, which resulted in a settlement of their difficulties. Quackenbush and Ranney pleaded with Judge Blair in O'Brien's behalf, and the result was his discharge. It is understood that O'Brien and his wife have become reconciled. gen avenue, Jersey City, who, he alleged, had

BOWLING GREEN SITE. Owners to Confer on a Price to He Made Jury refused to indict one of their members who had himself arrested on a charge of violating the Sunday laws by keeping his place open on Sunday. It was a test case, and the delicatessen men were allowed to present their views to the Grand Jury.

Now the delicatessen dealers of this city propose to open their places on Sunday, maintaining that they have a right to do so. The fact that the Grand Jury decided that the delicatessen dealers were caterers will not, however, prevent the police from making further arrests; but if the arrests are made the association threatens to make it hot for the police.
